

Letters from the Future

Imagine that your future self has already reached your current goals, experienced your desired transformation, or made it through the difficult period you are facing right now. What message would they give you?

What good things about yourself would your future self remind you of that you may have forgotten? These might include a quality, a skill, a personal achievement, or an experience.
